Jordan Award
significant, comprehensive philanthropic achievements
Jacqueline & Martin Clompus

Natives of Chester County, Jackie and Martin Clompus have long been enthusiastic philanthropists in the community they love so dearly. Serving in capacities ranging from president to volunteer, both Jackie and Martin dedicate most of their free time to bettering Chester County.

The couple married right after Jackie graduated from high school. Now 70 years later, they are the parents of 4 children, 11 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Shortly after their marriage, Martin entered the Navy and served as a meteorologist on an aircraft carrier during World War II. After returning home, he took over his father's junkyard business and in the evenings worked as a welder at Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company in Philadelphia.

Between long hours working two jobs, Martin found time for the community service so dear to his heart. In 1954, Martin became the President of the West Chester Kiwanis Club, raising $5,000 in his first year. After his presidency, Martin continued to serve on the board and helped establish Circle K, a youth philanthropy group at West Chester University.

In the late 1950's Martin joined a committee of West Chester residents who helped to refurbish six homes on Adams Street in the Borough. "The paint was pulling away from the ceilings because the homes were so old... so... 'not good,'" Clompus said of the condition of the buildings.

Martin also helped create, organize and implement the Chester County Night School, which began in 1956 and still carries on to this day. Now an Emeritus Board Member, Martin recalls one of the first dance classes the school ever provided: "I was sitting on the bleachers watching, and a man came up to me and told me to go out and dance. Jackie and I took dance classes for 30 years after that."

In 1965, Martin served as President of the West Chester Civic Association. That year, he and other members provided $5,000 in seed money to help found the West Chester Day Care Center.

From 1972-74, Martin served as President of Keshet Israel Congregation in West Chester. Soon after, from 1974-79 he served as Chairman of the Jewish National Fund, specializing in the development of Israeli land and infrastructure. Martin also volunteered with the United Jewish Appeal, which presented him with a Recognition of Leadership award due to his successful fundraising in 1988.

In the early 1990s, the Chester County Chamber of Business and Industry was emerging. In his position as President of the Phoenixville Chamber of Commerce, Martin recognized the need for a centralized membership organization to represent the business interests of its members to elected officials, and he helped promote the formation of the CCCBI. Throughout its existence, the CCCBI has led the way in business advocacy and pro-business political involvement.

Jackie Clompus has followed her own volunteer path. What Jackie sees as her proudest accomplishment took place in her own backyard. There, for over 25 years, Jackie helped the American Red Cross organize swimming lessons in the Clompus' backyard pool. "Over 1,000 children learned to swim in this pool," she says with pride.

After 45 years of service, the Red Cross named Jackie a charter member of the Clara Barton Honor Society--the highest honor given by the American Red Cross to volunteers.

Jackie served as President of Keshet Israel Sisterhood for two years and President of Hadassah at Keshet for two years. These volunteer women's organizations strengthen their partnership with Israel, ensure Jewish continuity, and realize Jewish women's potential as a dynamic force in American society.

In 1976, Jackie became the first female president of the United Fund of West Chester, which later merged with other United Funds to become the United Way of Chester County.

In the 1990s Jackie received the "Chester County Women of Achievement" award from the March of Dimes.

Throughout their years together, Jackie and Martin Clompus have displayed their commitment to serve Chester County, over and over again.

Susan Elko of Exton

Susan Elko has a quiet knack for seeking out and encouraging others to volunteer and give their time, talents and treasures, much as she has for over 40 years. Volunteering as a young mother with the Green Circle, a Quaker program of inclusiveness, enabled Susan to better understand how to bring others into the fold.

As a board member of the Chester County Fund for Women and Girls, Susan used her education background to develop curriculum for a Girls Conference, and lead the way with the Fund's first By Girls, For Girls Advisory Group.

A sermon at First Presbyterian Church moved Susan to run a coat drive. This was just the beginning. In 1991 Susan became one of the Church's Mission Advocates; in 2003 she became Mission Advocate Coordinator.

Barbara Kirby at St. Agnes Day Room became a pivotal person in Susan's life, leading her to further volunteer opportunities—this time to find shelter for Homeless Single Women. With quiet determination, Susan helped coordinate a winter emergency shelter by involving her congregation while Safe Harbor renovated and added shelter for women.

Susan's deep commitment to helping homeless women continues with Bridge of Hope, which ends and prevents homelessness for single mothers and their children. Susan continues to be a powerful example of how one person's dedication and passion helps, now and forever.

Corporate Social Investment Award
IMC Construction

Founded in 1976, IMC Construction is a full service construction management firm offering high-quality construction management and general contracting to a diverse group of national clients. The Malvern-based company has grown to be one of the largest construction firms in the Philadelphia area. After decades of growth, IMC remains true to its core values of being "responsible leaders in our profession and our community."

Philanthropy has become ingrained in the culture of IMC. Employees are encouraged to grow personally and professionally by allocating paid volunteer time for staff to assist nonprofits in the community. IMC's approach to community outreach has resulted in the founding of the IMC

Foundation whose mission is to help and financially support nonprofit charities and community organizations throughout our region. The foundation's biggest event each year is the Charitable Golf outing, now in its seventh year.

Over the years, beneficiaries of IMC's generosity are chosen with employee input. They include Community Volunteers in Medicine, The Devereux Foundation, Thorncroft Equestrian Center, ACHIEVEability, Overbrook School for the Blind, Tredyffrin Library Foundation, Green Valley Association, Wissahickon Hospice, Tyler Arboretum, Historic Yellow Springs, Boy Scouts of America, Vanguard School, National Kidney Foundation, Hope Springs Equestrian Therapy, as well as many hospital charities, schools, local police departments, fire companies and food banks.

IMC has been named a Top 100 Green Contractor by Engineering News Record. Additionally, IMC has been named Best Place to Work and awarded the Community Impact Award for well-rounded philanthropic giving for three consecutive years by the Philadelphia Business Journal.

Robert Cottone, President/CEO at IMC, states, "IMC has built a staff and a culture committed to improving the communities where we live through a combination of service and financial support. We believe in the adage, to whom much is given, much is expected in return!"
